

Meet Buster

Buster is the first unique dinosaur species from British Columbia and has been given the new scientific name Ferrisaurus sustutensis. It means “The Iron Lizard from the Sustut River.” We don’t know Buster’s exact colours, but it may have been striped or spotted to blend in with its environment. What do you think Buster may have looked like?

Find out more about Buster by visiting the Learning Portal at rbcm.ca/learning and select the Pathway “BC’s Mountain Dinosaur.”
